MONUMENTS.

(PURE ZINC.)

White Bronze is to some in the monument business what the improved drop-head machine is to the old hand method, or the palace car is to the old stage coach.

It is the advanced thought of the age. It is indestructible and will perpetuate the records and resting place of your loved ones.

It is very beautiful with a frosted silver appearance. Please hold your order until you can investigate it.

LETTER FROM BELLE PLAINS.

In writing another letter to the I. J. I feel that the readers may think I am like the man who loved to see his name in print so well that after he was married, he carried the paper with him for a month, to read the notice of his marriage.

I have just returned from a trip to the Indian Territory, and my second experience in interviewing the Indians afforded as much amusement to my victims as to myself. I felt that I was gaining information at the expense of dignity—at least in their estimation.

One store that I visited was owned by a white man, whose wife was an Indian woman. He is called the "squaw man."

The store was well stocked and the prices exorbitant. Then I visited his home, which was well furnished and very clean; then we went to some of the wigwams. In these, the Indians were dressed in their costumes of buckskin and from their hair they had a strip of buckskin hanging to their shoulders with numerous bright buttons on it and each button representing a man having been killed by them.

Several of the bucks came to our party offering to sell the white men squaws at from $5 to $20 each, and we were very much alarmed for fear we would be taken "Nolens Volens." I was armed with a kodak, bent on taking their pictures. In one of the wigwams was an Indian, a squaw and a papoose; they had impressive stares on their faces, but nothing daunted, I said "howdy," but there was no response. I felt very much out of place by the side of this red lady, who was arrayed in a bright red calico dress, trimmed with bands of white and yellow and covered with masses of beads. Her hair was hanging over her head and done up in a tight twist in the back. I finally got the Indian to talk, telling me some of the Indian words. "Uncach" means good and "wagus" means very bad.

They are very much afraid of having their pictures taken, but I secured several which I am going to bring to Kentucky. I secured one picture of a little boy who was so frightened that his limbs look dislocated, but otherwise the pictures are satisfactory. They do not have any marriage ceremony. If a guy wants to marry, he will go to the girl's house and lay down his gun and present and if she wants him she will take them in and they are looked upon as married. When one of their tribe dies, they say the "Great Spirit" took him and all of the dead one's treasures are buried with him. They are extremely honest, but I could not feel at ease until we started home. The Indian men seemed kindly disposed but the women kept up a continual talk about our party.

But I shall never forget the scene—imagine acres and acres of grass, like an immense corn field, waving in every direction. Their cabins were composed of four posts, the roof covered with straw and logs, raised about two feet, for sleeping and sitting accommodation. Two of our party went to another shanty, and after heartily partaking of the meal, they were made "sea-sick" by the Indian saying "Have more dog."

They will pay any price for a fat dog, a cat or a few eggs. But enough of the
